Memories of an Iconic Restaurant thru 85 years

This grand and historic Plymouth restaurant began its life as a typical 1890's farmhouse. Then, in the 1930's, immediately following prohibition, the family home was converted into the Hillside Inn. The Hillside Inn was a special occasion restaurant, and also served very special food such as African lion, hippopotamus, black bear, etc. The main cuisine was American traditional including prime rib dinners and complimentary appetizers featuring finan haddie, etc.

In 1983, present owner Sam Messina and brother Stephan purchased the restaurant from descendants of the original owners, the Stremichs. The Hillside Inn continued for awhile, grew to the area's most complex restaurant with seating for 500 guests on 3 floors, and the area's first outdoor patio with an additional 100 seats! A short time later, the brothers brought master chef Ernie DeMichelle to Plymouth – the restaurant was re-named Ernesto's an Italian Country Inn in recognition of Ernie's celebrity chef status and his love of simple, flavor-loaded Italian foods. With Sam at the helm in the front of the house and Ernie's incredible talents in the kitchen, it soon became a region-wide favorite.

As we crossed over into the new millennium and the world became a more casual place, we did too! The Courthouse Grille was born, a casual upscale restaurant with decidedly affordable prices. Our menu has slowly evolved to please the palates of today's diners, offering more American comfort foods and fresh farm-to-table fare. As a salute to the past, we still proudly feature many of Chef Ernie's classic and wonderful dishes. After all, memories are what we are all about – may you enjoy many more dining experiences at the Courthouse Grille. Enjoy our unique contemporary atmosphere in Plymouth's finest landmark building.

Buon Appetito!
